Excerpt: . and was now red all over the temples to the nape of his neck. Bon jour, Olivier! bon jour, Claire! exclaimed the Duchesse de Varignan, sprinkling her words over them like scented water, and half smothering them in the huge puffs of blue silk and enormous bows of blue ribbon, which swelled and fluttered upon all sides of her looped-up dress; and she passed on without noticing the fact of her salutation having met with no return. Who was that man? asked the young Marquise. What man? who? stammered M. de Beauvoisin. The man who spoke to you just now! added Claire. Oh! that man--well--a man I once had some dealings with-- and Olivier hesitated. Some dealings with about wine, he said this hurriedly, and apparently glad to have caught hold of a reply. Claire felt that this was not true, but could...
