

7 Steps to Better Relationships

By Prem P. Bhalla

Goodwill Publishing House, New Delhi, India. Softcover. Book Condition: New. Human relationships are more a matter of circumstance than of choice. One cannot choose ones grandparents, uncles, aunts or cousins. One has no choice over brothers and sisters either. It is the circumstances that create these relationships. Even the choice of relationships in school, college, society, or at the workplace is limited. One comes across people, and amongst them one builds relationships to attain ones immediate purpose in life. The only relationships where one can exert ones choice is in selecting a spouse, or in making friends. One can also choose ones guru or mentor. With a very limited choice in building relationships, one can at best only learn how to maintain relationships. People often wonder that makes building and maintaining relationships difficult? Why is it that even brothers and sisters born of the same parents, and educated in the same school and colleges cannot get along? Why is it that even parents and children cannot live in harmony with each other? Maintaining good relationships with other relatives can of course be understood. Most people claim that they have excellent relationships with some friends. Is it not surprising that while one cannot have...
