Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Report of the Secretary of the Navy, Communicating Copies of Commodore Stockton s Despatches, Relating to the Military and Naval Operations in California, 1849 I am happy to say in answer to that despatch, that all your instructions contained therein had been anticipated and executed, and my proceedings forwarded to you by different routed two weeks before the arrival of Mr. McRae - even that part of them suggesting that a messenger be sent across the mountains to Washington; which messenger I hope you will have seen and sent back to me before this can reach you. I send enclosed the correspondence between General Castro and myself. I did not answer his last letter, but by a verbal message, which does not properly belong to history. We found in and near his camp ten pieces of artillery - six in good order, and four spiked. The elections as far as heard from have been regularly held, and the proper officers elected. The people are getting over their first alarm, and our friends are not now afraid to avow themselves. General Castro and the governor having collected at one time so large a force together, and our remaining inactive at Monterey, induced the belief that we were not willing to run the hazard of a fight, and that if we did we must be beaten. No one, foreigner or native, dared aid us even with advice or information. But since Castro and the governor have been driven out of the country, the aspect of things is changed, and all is going on as well as we ought to desire. By an intercepted correspondence between the military...
