It was indeed the hardy band of pioneer soldiery under Gen. Wm. H. Harrison, that turned back the British mercenaries and their savage Indian allies under Gen. Proctor. It was indeed a memorable event not only in the history of the Maumee Valley, but it was one of national significance as well. It proved a triumph in our national history when the British hordes were driven back broken and discomfited, and this glorious heritage, now dotted with thriving towns and cities and peaceful homes, was saved from foreign thralldom and spoliation. The Ovation of 1840. Twenty-seven years afterwards, during the famous campaign of General Harrison for the presidency, in 1840, the people came in great crowds numbered by thousands, to do honor to...
